NEW TRAFFIC ENFORCEMENT DRIVE STARTS

Police Launch Campaign for Parking and Driving Regulation.

WEEKLY COURT RESUMED

Program To Be Permanent, Chief Says: Has Complete List of Motorists.

Armed with a fresh supply of [illegible] Marion police today launched a drive to enforce traffic and parking regulations in the city following receipt of a list of citizens and the numbers on the license plates issued for their automobiles.

Traffic court will again be held weekly in municipal court, and all violators of the city traffic ordinances are to be brought in, Judge [illegible] said. Police today were paying particular attention to double parking and parking in restricted zones.

Receipt of the license plate list and completion of the painting of new 30-degree angle parking lanes in the city was the signal for start of the police drive today. Chief William E. Marks said he had obtained the list "from a friend in the city" whose name he declined to reveal.

Court Temporarily Suspended

Marion has had no formal traffic court since the first of this year because police were without a list of license plates and could not identify motorists whose cars were tagged. "It was useless to conduct a traffic drive prior to now because it was impossible to ascertain the names of the responsible persons," Chief Marks said. He said the list he has obtained carries the names and license numbers of all Marion county motorists to whom plates have been issued.

Early this year Police Capt. E. C. Mackan, then chief, made an effort to obtain a list of license plates and their owners. The state bureau of motor vehicles informed him such a list would cost more than $100, and Mackan said city council did not appropriate funds for the purchase and a satisfactory list was not, at that time, available from any other source.

In more serious traffic violations police have been telephoning the Marion Auto club for the name of the motorist under investigation.

Not "Flash," Chief Says

Parking in the business district is restricted to two hours. Restricted zones are marked with yellow paint on the curb. Chief Marks said the current traffic drive will not be a "flash in the pan" but that it will be a continuous policy of the department now that names of violators are available for summons to traffic court. The usual fine for minor infringement of traffic regulations is $2.

The police motorcycle, damaged by fire several weeks ago, is expected to be placed in service about Nov. 1.

ELECTION OFFICIALS TO ATTEND SCHOOL

Presiding Judges To Be Given Instruction on Order of State Secretary.

A "school" for presiding judges of Marion city and county election precincts will be held next Saturday afternoon and night at the headquarters of the county board of elections to outline changes in ballots and election regulations.

Presiding judges from the rural districts will meet at 2 p. m., and those from the city at 7 p. m. Attendance at the school, which is being conducted upon instructions from the secretary of state, is compulsory, and any judge who fails to appear will not be permitted to serve at the Nov. 5 election, board officials said today.

The county judges also will get their supplies at the meeting, and distribution of supplies to city judges will be made Monday.

The principal change in the ballots concerns a return to the old "double-stub" ballot, designed to guard against "chain voting." Each ballot will have two perforated stubs, both numbered. When a voter asks for his ballot one stub will be torn off and his name and number will be called by a precinct official. When he returns his marked ballot to cast his vote, the other stub will be torn off and his name and number again called.

ONE WEEK TO GO UNTIL ELECTION

Candidates Launch Final Drive for Votes at Polls Next Tuesday.

VOTING TO BE COUNTYWIDE

School Levy and Another for City Operating Funds Are Special Issues.

With the Nov. 5 election just a week away, candidates and party organizations were getting into the final stages of their campaign programs today.

For the most part, the campaign has been left largely to the candidates and their own personal organizations, although the party organizations have held a series of meetings and social activities to acquaint their members with the candidates.

Political club activities were tapering off today. The Republican club held their last major pre-election meeting in party headquarters. The Democratic club will will wind up their joint campaign meetings tonight in party headquarters.

Except for a few ward meetings, the campaign from now on appears to be a matter of individual effort among the candidates and their friends.

Pre-election activities this week have included the filing of applications for absent voters' ballots which may be obtained until Saturday night. One hundred and twenty-six ballots for voters who will be out of the city next Tuesday had been issued up to yesterday afternoon, election officials said.

Next Tuesday's election will be countywide. In the city, a mayor, auditor, treasurer, solicitor, council president, councilmen, municipal judge and city school board members will be elected and a three-mill levy for city schools and a two-mill levy for municipal government will be voted on. In the rural districts, county board of education members will be elected, townships will elect trustees and clerks, justices of peace and constables, villages will elect mayors, councilmen and marshals, and rural school districts will elect members to the board of education. A number of special levies will be voted on in rural districts.

In addition to tonight's joint meeting of the Marion County Democratic club, the women's division of the club and the Younger Voters Democratic club, Democratic leaders have planned a

JOHNSON FEARFUL OF INFLATION WAVE

Warns of "Printing Press Money" Within a Year Unless Spending Decreases.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 29—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson told an audience here last night, in response to a question, that government expenditures would bring "printing press money" within a year unless curtailed soon.

Johnson attacked "blunders" of the new deal but called for the re-election of President Roosevelt in his address before the Temple Men's club lecture series.

To a questioner who said that the British debt per capita was larger than that in the United States, Johnson said: "Yes, but that's no reason to go on piling up ours until it topples over.

"You'll have printing press money within a year if you have to keep up the present government expenses."

He was asked: "Whom would you support in 1936 unless Roosevelt changes the course of the new deal?" and he replied: "I see nobody to support except Franklin D. Roosevelt."

ROMAN LEGIONS MOVE FORWARD AND ROUT FOES

Columns Advance 25 Miles and Prepare To Merge for Attack on Makale.

SCATTER SOUTHERN ENEMY

Troops Under Graziani Put Ethiopians to Flight and Capture 732 Rifles.

By The Associated Press

Having pushed 25 miles deeper into Ethiopia, Mussolini's forces were half way today on the march from Adigrat to Makale, mountain pass gateway to the interior.

Small concentrations of Ethiopian tribesmen scattered before the advancing Fascists.

The eastern column of the Italian army in the north reached Hauzien, 25 miles south of Adigrat.

To the west, the advance forces of the column advancing south from Aduwa had penetrated the Takkaze river valley 30 miles. This force, it was expected, would swing to the east and join the other columns in a combined offensive against Makale.

Southern Forces Advance Too

On the southern front, the Italian advance from Somaliland continued uninterrupted. A communique issued in Rome said:

"On the Somaliland front, patrols of Dubats (native Somaliland soldiers) put to flight groups of armed Ethiopians between Scillave and Gorrahei. There have been 732 rifles captured."

Gorrahei is the immediate objective in the southern sector before the Italians consolidate their forces for the drive north to Harar, the metropolis of eastern Ethiopia.

Airplanes soared over both the northern and southern fronts, seeking the locations of Ethiopian troops.

An Exchange Telegraph (British) dispatch from the Somaliland front said Italian planes had flown over Magalo, half way to Addis Ababa.

Sanctions Drive Planned

As Il Duce's empire building armies continued their offensives, the League of Nations, pessimistic over the chances for an early peace, planned its campaign of sanctions against Italy.

An official communique in Geneva showed 24 nations had notified the league they would participate in the "buy nothing from Italy" boycott.

These nations are the Union of South Africa, Australia, Belgium, Great Britain, Bulgaria, Denmark, Esthonia, France, Greece, Guatemal, India, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Rumania, Sweden, Switzerland, Russia and Yugoslavia.

Officials of the league said the task of putting into effect the penalties against Il Duce's government would be given to various committees of the league who would be held responsible.

The general sanctions staff of 52 nations will definitely lay down the machinery to watch the application and progress of the penalties.

The diplomats in Geneva were skeptical over the chances of an Italo-Ethiopian peace conference at the forthcoming sessions of the league, which open Thursday.

ONE FROM DELAWARE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Columbus Man and Woman Other Victims of Crossing Accident.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29—Columbus cleaned up after its worst automobile accident in weeks today while the Big Brothers' association pleaded for adoption of a drivers' license law.

Two men and a woman were killed last night when their automobile crashed into the side of the crack "Spirit of St. Louis" on the Pennsylvania railroad.

Arthur Welch, 40, of Delaware, driver, and John Smith, 39, of Columbus, were catapulted to their death by the force of the impact.

A woman who died a short time later first was identified as Welch's wife, her body was taken to Delaware, but there it was identified at the Ramsey-Mohr Funeral home as Mrs. Dorothy Barker, about 37, of Columbus.

It was learned that the victim was not Mrs. Welch after Roy Welch, her son, viewed the body and said his mother was in Marion.

Joe Burgie, 40, of Delaware, riding with them in the small roadster, was injured slightly. He is Mrs. Welch's brother.

Coroner E. E. Smith, opening an investigation with county and railroad police, quoted Burgie as saying all members of the party had drunk some liquor before the crash.

C. C. Seagle, watchman at the crossing, said Welch disregarded his signals to stop and drove at a good speed into the train.

The Big Brothers' association set at 200 the number of lives that might have been saved in Ohio in 1935 had the state had a drivers license law. It adopted a resolution calling upon the legislature to enact such a law. Gov. Davey has approved a bill to be presented soon.

Safety Methods Stressed in Talks Before Foremen

One Hundred Attend Dinner at Hotel Harding as Annual Campaign Gets Under Way.

Approximately 100 persons actively interested in the observance of "safety week" in Marion, including foremen from the various industrial plants and members of the Marion Industrial Safety council, sponsors of the observance, heard officials of the state industrial commission last night at a dinner meeting at Hotel Harding.

The principal speaker was Harry Sain, special representative of the department of safety and hygiene of the industrial commission. R. B. Criswell, engineer for the Ohio inspection department, gave a novel demonstration of fire hazards. Other officials introduced to the audience, several of whom spoke briefly, were Thomas P. Kearns, superintendent of the division of safety and hygiene; J. W. Beal, employers' representative from the industrial commission; A. D. Caddell, secretary of the industrial commission and formerly secretary of the Ohio Manufacturers' association; R. W. Knott, bailiff for the industrial commission; H. B. Heyne, safety engineer with the division of safety and hygiene, and Sidney Smith, special representative of the division. Dr. A. O. Linscott, president of the Y's Men's Service club, local young men's group which sponsored "safety week" in 1934 and 1933, also spoke briefly. Ray Eaton, vice president of the Marion Industrial Safety council and chairman of "safety week," presided at the dinner as toastmaster.

Three Phases of Safety

Mr. Sain spoke on three phases of safety—safety with regard to human life, safety in the home and traffic safety.

In voicing the object of safety campaigns Mr. Sain, quoting from Thomas Huxley, declared that "creative action and not knowledge is the thing for which we are striving." We know safety hazards and we pretty much know the remedy —what we need is to put this knowledge into action, he said.

In expanding upon the first phase of safety—with regard to human life, Mr. Sain asserted the average person does not appreciate the

100 EXPECTED HERE AT PHONE MEETING

Northwestern Ohio To Be Represented at Conference Wednesday.

Approximately 100 northwestern Ohio members of the Ohio Independent Telephone association will meet here Wednesday afternoon in one of a series of district meetings being held to discuss local and general problems of independent telephone companies.

The meeting will be held in Hotel Harding. It will open with a luncheon and the afternoon session will be devoted to an informal conference at which William C. Henry, president of the state association and manager of the Northern Ohio Telephone Co. at Bellevue, will preside.

J. T. Carliss, vice president and general manager of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. with headquarters in Marion, is one of 17 directors of the organization.

The association for the state as a whole embraces 200 independent companies operating 689 exchanges in the state and serving 250,000 subscribers in 80 of the 88 counties of the state.

One of the series of district meetings was held last week at Circleville.

Officers of the association, in addition to President Henry, are Gustav Hirsch of the Hirsch Management organization of Columbus, vice president, and Frank L. McKinney of Columbus, secretary and treasurer.

STEEL MEN RENEW BATTLE FOR RAISE

By The Associated Press

FARRELL, Pa., Oct. 29—The 22,000 workers of the American Sheet & Tinplate Co. will open another drive this week to gain their demands for more money and revision of their employe representation system. Requests for a 15 per cent pay boost were rejected by tinplate officials two weeks ago on the grounds business conditions did not justify it.

DAVEY'S LIQUOR CLAIMS BRING REPLY BY WHITE

Governor Says He Wrested Department from "Whisky Trust" and "Two Allies"; Predecessor Denies Graft.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29—Gov. Davey's assertion that he had wrested the state liquor monopoly from "the whisky trust" and "two allies" brought him today into direct controversy with his predecessor, former Gov. George White.

The governor, in the second of a series of radio talks discussing his administration, said last night:

"One of the most shocking things that we discovered early in my administration was the fact that the whisky trust and its two principal allies had been receiving the bulk of state business, and certain favored politicians had the almost exclusive entree to the liquor department."

White, under whose administration the department was established, commented in Marietta "I don't know what he's talking about."

"There wasn't the least rumor of graft in the department during my administration," White said. "I had every confidence in Col. Hughes (Col. John A. Hughes, first liquor director).

"I was congratulated by a very prominent New York man because Ohio was the only state in the middle west in which the administration took no rake off from its liquor monopoly."

Col. Hughes said in Cleveland "I was amused," but declined further comment.

Davey directed his address to newspapers which have published a

Y CAMPAIGN WORKERS OUT TO CROSS GOAL

Expected To Have Needed $478 by Time of Report Meeting Wednesday Night.

Y. M. C. A. workers were "on the streets" yesterday and today seeking to raise $478.05 needed to put over the drive for funds, started a week ago.

The final "victory dinner," at which workers will turn over subscriptions they have raised since Friday, is scheduled for 6 p. m. Wednesday at the Y.

Pledges totaling $9,022.95 have been reported to date. The goal is $9,500. Judge Hector S. Young, drive chairman, said he expected to contact the division leaders and team captains today to urge them to get their teams at work for the windup Wednesday. All 150 workers are expected to attend the "victory dinner."

CITY'S DEBT PAYMENT PROPOSAL GETS STATE TAX BOARD APPROVAL

MARION SCHOOL EXPENSES LOW

Per Pupil Cost Less Than in Other Ohio Cities, Survey Shows.

CUT IN RECENT YEARS

Figures Point to Urgent Need of Continuing 3-Mill Levy.

Editor's Note:—Knowing that renewal of the three-mill school levy is absolutely essential for adequate maintenance of Marion's school system, The Star wishes to provide its readers with all possible information on this vitally important matter. With that purpose in view, a series of articles dealing with various phases of the school situation and necessity of the levy will be published preceding election day, Nov. 5, when the levy will be submitted to voters. One of these articles appears below.

Elimination of 13 teaching positions, reductions averaging 25 per cent in the salaries of teachers and education of pupils at an average cost of $54.49—these are listed by C. A. Hudson, superintendent of schools as evidence that school operating costs have been held to a minimum in Marion.

Even with these economies, the schools have been depending heavily on the three-mill levy, up for renewal at the Nov. 5 election, for operating funds, Supt. Hudson said. The levy raises approximately $90,000 on a 100 per cent tax collection, an amount sufficient to operate the schools for two and one-half months.

"In view of absolute need for continuation of the levy and the fact that renewing it will not increase the real estate tax burden a single dollar, school officials and civic organizations of the city are urging the voters to vote in favor of the levy on Nov. 5," Supt. Hudson said.

Marion's Average Cost Low

Last year, with the Marion school term a half month short of nine months, the cost of operating the schools amounted to $61.75 a pupil, records show. In the same term, Ashland spent $77.58 a pupil, Steubenville $70.85, Canton $66.80, Zanesville $63.53, Lima $58.72, Lorain $56.26, Chillicothe $50.57, school survey records show.

The average cost for each pupil in the 1933-34 term, among cities reporting to the federal office of education, was $65.71 for schools in cities from 10,000 to 30,000 population and $81.42 for schools in cities of 30,000 to 100,000 population.

In adopting the school foundation program for Ohio, the state legislature this year set up "minimum standards of education" which will entail an average cost of $51 for each pupil each term to maintain. Thus, the Marion program has been barely above an absolute minimum program for the last two years.

Record Shows Decreases

Emphasizing that decreases in revenue in recent years due to increased tax delinquencies, shrinkage of tax duplicates and enactment of the 10-mill limitation have made retrenchments necessary in school operations, Supt. Hudson listed the cost of operating the schools in Marion since 1930 as follows: 1930—$68.12 a pupil; 1931—$69.62 a pupil; 1932—$62.23; 1933—$49.70 (eight-month term); 1934—$51.75; 1935—$54.49.

TRIAL OF J. J. CURL BEGINS AT WOOSTER

Defense Outlined by Attorney Warner After Jury Is Seated.

Trial of Johnston J. Curl of Marion on a charge of issuing checks without funds began in Wayne county common pleas court this morning, a news dispatch from Wooster reported.

There was considerable delay in selecting a jury. The regular list of prospective jurors was exhausted and five additional persons were summoned for jury service after numerous members of the regular panel had been excused because they had formed opinions.

Fred W. Warner of Marion, attorney for Curl, outlined a plan of defense in which Curl contends he signed the checks involved in the action before the amounts were written on them, and did not know there was not sufficient money in the bank to cover them.

Those asserting they received worthless checks signed by Curl are the principal witnesses against him.

The checks involved in the case allegedly were signed by Curl as treasurer of the Wooster Livestock Sales Co. and issued to persons in payment for livestock they had consigned to the company for sale early in August.

DURBIN WINS COURT FIGHT

Will Not Have To Stand Trial Second Time, Appeals Judges Decide.

CASE DEFINITELY AT END

Dismissal of Indictment in Election Case Is Upheld.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, O., Oct. 29 — W. W. Durbin of Kenton, registrar of the United States treasury, will not have to stand trial a second time on a charge of circulating unsigned election material, the Third district court of appeals decided in an opinion received here today by Clerk of Courts Carl Ross.

The appellate court's decision is expected definitely to dispose of the litigation that has been pending in Crawford county and appellate courts since Durbin was charged with circulating unsigned election material in the congressional primary campaign of 1932. The legal skirmishes attracted widespread attention because of Durbin's prominence in state and national Democratic affairs and because senate confirmation of his appointment as registrar of the treasury was delayed several months until an indictment against him in connection with the alleged circulation of unsigned campaign literature was dismissed early in 1934.

It was dismissal of the indictment by Judge David Thomas of Marietta, who presided in the Crawford county trial of Durbin's case, that was the crux of the question on which the case was taken to the court of appeals several weeks ago.

It was taken to the appellate

CLEVELAND BANKER TO LEAVE FOR PRISON

J. Arthur House Must Serve Six Years for Fund Misapplication.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 29—J. Arthur House, president of the $115,000,000 Guardian Trust Co., which crashed in 1932, surrendered to federal authorities today and prepared to depart immediately for the Lewisburg, Pa., prison to begin a six year sentence for misapplication of funds.

House was convicted of misapplying $54,000 of the bank's funds, and of making false entries in its books. He also was fined $10,400.

The surrender of the once prominent banker followed the receipt by federal authorities of a mandate from the United States circuit court of appeals which had upheld his conviction and sentence, and which had, in turn, been upheld when the United States supreme court refused to review the case.

House appeared pale and worn when he walked into the federal building.

"I am ready," was his only comment.

Tentative plans were made to have his son, J. Arthur House Jr., drive the former banker to Lewisburg in company with a deputy U. S. marshal.

SALE OF BONDS IS AUTHORIZED

Deficiency Issue of $125,000 Will Clear City Books for New Start.

REFUNDER ALSO SOUGHT

Marion One of First Cities in Ohio To Avail Itself of New Finance Plan.

City council's plan for paying off a municipal operating deficit of $125,500 has been approved officially by the state tax commission, The Associated Press reported today in a news dispatch from Columbus.

Ferd Hecker of the tax commission said the commission had approved a deficiency bond issue in that amount for Marion. The bonds will be issued against delinquent taxes.

As city officials prepared to proceed with the deficiency issue, they made preparations to file with the tax commission another application for authority to refund approximately $75,000 worth of city bonds falling due in 1936.

Council's program is to issue deficiency bonds to pay off the city's past operating indebtedness and to issue refunding bonds to prevent a recurrence of the deficit in 1936, city officials said.

Among First to Use Plan

Marion is one of the first cities in Ohio to adopt the plan of issuing deficiency bonds to clear up deficits, made possible by Ohio law, The Associated Press reported. It was expected that this city's plan may provide many Ohio cities with a solution to their financial problems.

For the last several years, Marion has been in debt on its bills for fire hydrant rentals, street lighting bills and bills for supplies needed in various city departments. Through issuance of the bonds, it will be able to relieve this indebtedness.

Cities may issue bonds against 70 per cent of their delinquent taxes so long as the bonds do not exceed the unpaid bills. Hecker said Marion officials advised him the city could issue the bonds without a vote of the people, since they would not exceed the constitutional 10-mill limitation.

W. M. Fabian, chairman of the council finance committee which suggested the two-point financial program to council, said today every effort will be made to proceed with the deficiency bond issue as soon as possible. One reason for wishing to speed the issuance of bonds is the unusually favorable bond market existing at present, he said. Whereas some city bonds run as high as six per cent, it is hoped the deficiency issue can be marketed for four to four and one-half per cent if the present condition of the market continues to prevail, he said.

He emphasized that council is anxious to start preparations as soon as possible to get the second phase of its financial program started—the issuance of refunding bonds.

Must Guard Future

"Paying off the old bills through issuance of deficiency bonds is important, but it's equally important that we combine with this another step to make sure there won't be another deficit at the end of 1936," he pointed out.

State tax commission officials today told The Associated Press Marion's application for the refunding bond issue has not yet been filed, but officials here said the printing of standardized application blanks is virtually the only cause of delay. The city expects to receive a copy of the application blanks in the near future and prepare a formal application at once, City Solicitor Theodore B. Ochs said.

It is expected council will formally authorize the issuance of the deficiency bonds at its next meeting Nov. 12. If this is done, officials said they felt the bonds probably would be ready for sale by the middle of December and not later than early in January.

The $125,500 deficiency issue authorized by the state tax commission will pay all overdue city bills up to Dec. 31, 1934, officials said. If there is any 1935 deficit, it is expected to be taken care of in the 1936 financial program, partially through the proposed refunding bonds.

STOCKS SHIFTY IN QUIET TRADE

Specialties Hold Their Own But Motors and Others Feel Profit Taking.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—It was a hit-and miss stock market again today with a little more emphasis on the miss side

Specialties gave a good account of themselves and exceptionally weak spots were scarce, but the more active leaders of the past several weeks notably the motors and scattered "blue chip" issues, were subjected to profit taking for losses ranging from fractions to a point or more. The activity was under that of the preceding session

Heaviness of wheat at Chicago and Winnipeg did not help sentiment for equities. Cotton was listless. Bonds were about as irregular as stocks. Foreign exchanges held to a restricted range

Among shares that got up 1 to around 3 points were Sharon Steel Hoop Norfolk & Western Union Pacific, American Agricultural Chemical Canada Dry Westinghouse, Mesta Machine and Crown Cork The rails on the whole slipped a shade in either direction as did most of the steels coppers, oils and utilities Paramount first preferred was a soft spot with a recession of 3 points or so Declines of fractions to 2 were registered by Chrysler General Motors Studebaker Allied Chemical Johns Manville, American Sugar Refining Case and American Can

Although there was no dearth of money for speculation one of the large Wall Street banks boosted its call rate from ¼ to ¾ of 1 per cent the first increase in the rate since it was lowered last April Time money was also raised slightly Other New York banks it was understood in informed quarters will follow suit The reason advanced for the raise was that no money could be made at the old ¼ rate The official stock exchange rate remained at ¼ although I was anticipated that this would be moved up with the bank charge

Both the bulls and bears had arguments for the maintenance of their positions

The former felt that stocks are entitled to back up at times and that such reactions are in reality healthy They pointed to vast sums of idle cash seeking employment and huge government spending as supporting factors in a long pull upward trend of prices

On the other side of the fence pessimism was deduced from the failure of foreign peace efforts to get anywhere and from fears Europe is not yet out of the woods so far as a general war is concerned In addition it was said a number of stocks may be selling too high in relation to the brightest earnings prospects There were also suggestions that the next congress will impose higher taxes all around and that operating costs of many companies may be increased to such an extent that profits will suffer substantially

WILD GEESE ESCAPE FROM NIAGARA BRINK

Only Few Left To Chance Death Ride Over Thundering Falls

By The Associated Press

NIAGARA FALLS N Y Oct 29—Thousands of geese which man had been unable to frighten out of a natural death trap in the waters above Niagara Falls suddenly flew south yesterday Only a few hundred were chancing a deadly ride over the falls

Conservationists, ready to send planes roaring over the geese in an attempt to frighten them from the dangerous river sighed with relief as the birds took wing It had been feared another night of struggling with the swift current would weaken them and many would be carried over the falls This had happened to about 200 of them since they landed here Saturday night

The present flock which included some brant white swans and ducks was estimated at between 5 000 and 10 000 Apparently they were part of a great migration flight southward for the Niagara is on one of the migration routes followed year after year by waterfowl

The stubborn birds refused to be frightened into the air by rockets shotguns and searchlights

Weather conditions largely govern habits of waterfowl on migration and naturalists believe a heavy haze kept the flock anchored here for the two days

SPEAKERS STRESS NEED OF SAFETY value of a human life We get excited, he said when we read of a couple of missionaries killed by Chinese bandits on the other side of the world but there are twice that many killed in a city over a week end, and we give it little thought.

He mentioned a benevolent Chinese burial association in Shanghai that picks up 24,000 Chinese a year from the streets and buries them. "We say they're not civilized and that could not happen here, and yet we pick that many and more from our streets after automobile accidents," he declared.

He spoke of mechanical machinery in the industrial plants and the care given it by its owners and operators We are very, very careful about mechanical machinery, and yet human machinery, which is of far greater importance, is often treated carelessly.

Foreman's Responsibility

Mr Sain urged foremen and industrial officials present to "take inventory of yourself with relation to how you stand with the men in your plant" He charged it is their duty to send a working man home at night just as physically sound as he was when he came to work in the morning "You can't injure a man's body without also injuring his soul," he asserted When a man loses a hand a finger or any part of his physical equipment he realizes he is not as good as the whole man who is working next to him, he explained

Mr. Sain told the foremen "it is up to them to promote satisfaction among the workers and bring about a good feeling between them and the officials of the plant in which they are employed

Going into a brief discussion of safety in the home, the speaker declared there are twice as many injured annually in the home as there are in industry He advised a safety meeting among members of the family, and a cleanup of the premises of all fire and accident hazards Mr Sain said it is regretable the schools do not provide a course in safety and predicted that at some future date such a course would be introduced.

Speaking of traffic safety, he styled the "thirty million automobiles in the world the most dangerous weapon ever known to man" The drunken driver Mr Sain characterized as a formidable public enemy Since the return of legal liquor, he said, drunken driving in New Jersey has increased about 2 per cent and in Pennsylvania it has been boosted 90 per cent

He asserted the cure for this hazard is not more laws or more strict enforcement of existing laws "We must lead by example and explain and educate—not threaten, he declared. As sure as we tell a person not to do something, he'll want to go right out and do it" He closed with the advice "Don't don't your people"

Demonstration of Hazards

R B Criswell, engineer for the Ohio Inspection bureau, gave a table demonstration of fire hazards. Mr Criswell is giving his demonstration in the city schools this week and before the Parent-Teachers association It is a demonstration in which miniature apparatus is used to show, by quick reacting flames and controlled explosions, many of the common causes of disastrous fires in the home. Mr. Criswell used special tables for mounting his apparatus, which consisted of a miniature home, a home wiring system, gasoline and cleaning fluid cans mops, dolls and virtually all equipment found in the modern home

In his accompanying talk Mr Criswell quoted figures to show his audience that every two minutes a home in the world catches fire, and every 50 minutes a human life is lost as a result of fire He briefly outlined a number of home fire hazards, including smoking in bed. "Go home and caution your sons and daughters against smoking in bed," he said "and if they must smoke in their rooms tell them to keep their feet on the floor"

In stressing the dangers of burning cigarets, Mr Criswell displayed a card that bore the motto "chaperone your cigarets—they shouldn't go out alone" The major hazards demonstrated by Mr Criswell were defective wiring, spontaneous ignition flour and corn starch explosions, cleaning fluid and gasoline explosions, celluloid dolls, combs and other articles

The speaker cautioned against putting too much of a load upon the average home wiring circuit. Most of the circuits that have been installed in the home for some time are not designed to bear the load of all modern electrical appliances in addition to the lighting and heating facilities, he said He urged those who have many such appliances to have a modern circuit installed. Mr. Criswell demonstrated several types of explosions common in the use of cleaning fluid and gasoline He also cautioned against the practice of quickening a fire with kerosene

Mr. Criswell closed his demonstration and accompanying talk by illustrating the proper methods of summoning fire department in case of a blaze. He used miniature fire boxes and telephones in this explanation "Always remember that your fire department is your best friend," he said Fire Chief T J McFarland assisted Mr Criswell in preparing his apparatus for the demonstration.

Yesterday morning Mr Criswell, accompanied by Fire Chief T. J McFarland went to the Thomas A. Edison and Central Junior High schools and yesterday afternoon to the Green Camp and Pleasant township schools This morning he addressed an assembly at the Vernon Heights Junior High school and a second assembly at the Central school

Others Introduced

Following the dinner and group singing led by Don A. Howard and Edgar Barnhart, Toastmaster Ray Eaton introduced Sidney Smith of the department of hygiene and safety, who introduced J W Beal, A D Cadwell, R W Knott, H B Heyne and Thomas P Kearns.

Superintendent Kearns congratulated Marion and the Marion Industrial Safety council for the annual "safety week" observance, and urged safety consciousness throughout the year "It is the most humanitarian movement in America today," he declared

Mr Beal in a brief talk, told of the work of the state industrial commission and the workers compensation act. He said there are 900 new industrial claims filed daily, in addition to many old ones—some from 10 to 15 years old. Every dollar that companies pay into the industrial commission to finance the payment of claims must come out of the earnings of that firm, he explained.

"Many workmen are potential accidents running around looking for a place to happen," he asserted, in stressing the carelessness of workers in some plants.

He styled the workmen's compensation law "the most humanitarian issue ever written on the law books" Ohio has the largest compensation organization in the country, Mr Beal said "The chiselers who break in to plunder the compensation fund generally are headed off" He charged that it is the duty of the foreman to do his part in seeing that the "chiseler and racketeer does not plunder our fund"

In stressing the speed in which legitimate claims are paid, Mr. Beal quoted figures to show 92 per cent of all claims that come in are allowed and paid within 15 or 20 days.

W. D. Brown, secretary of the safety council and secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce who has been active in preparations for annual safety week, spoke briefly in introducing Dr A O Linscott.

Dr Linscott expressed the satisfaction the club derived in knowing it had been responsible for inaugurating safety week observance in Marion. He paid tribute to Harry Dowler and Henry Mickley, members of the club for their work in putting over the observance in 1923 and 1934.

DAVEY'S ASSERTIONS DENIED BY WHITE

series of articles criticizing his administration of the monopoly

He declared that under the former administration "many reliable distillers were almost completely barred from state business. There was something radically wrong with a situation that permitted the whisky trust and its allies to monopolize the bulk of the state business and control of so many state stores"

White replied "no reliable distillers were barred as far as I know"

"Just as soon as we were in a position of full responsibility, Davey continued, "I gave orders that this whisky trust should be broken and that all responsible distillers should have an opportunity to sell to the state"

"One of the glaring conditions that we found was lax law enforcement. There was evidence that some of the enforcement officials were used as part of a collection system, not to enforce the law but to protect law breakers."

Liquor Board Head Lauds Governor

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 29—George Eppley chairman of the state board of liquor control, voiced strong support today for Gov Davey's radio blast against attackers of Ohio's liquor administration.

Commenting on Davey's address last night accusing newspapers of being in league with the "whisky trust," Eppley said "The governor's speech was a presentation of facts It is something that should be brought to the public's attention to counteract unfair and malicious publicity the state department of liquor control has received from a certain source"

FASCISTS PENETRATE DEEPER INTO AFRICA

Britain and Russia in pledging full aid to sanctions, but who still seeks settlement of the east African conflict—will go to Geneva Thursday

There, too, will be Sir Samuel Hoare, Britain's foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden, the minister for League of Nations affairs

Laval and his foreign office aids studied closely the possibilities of renewing at Geneva the searching for a formula of settlement, but elsewhere, there appeared little hope.

In London, there was the belief the diplomats Thursday might discuss further punitive measures against Il Duce

Of primary importance, the general sanctions staff will lay down the deadline for putting into effect the two-way economic isolation of Italy—with its prohibition on exporting key products and its "buy nothing from Italy" boycott.

Both France and England imposed today the financial sanctions against the Fascist aggressor.

70 Bar Loans

So far 29 league members have put the financial sanctions—cutting off Italy from credits and loans abroad—into effect

Italy was preparing to meet the sanctions campaign with rigid economic domestic control, but so far, there was no outward concern.

An official quarter said the government was confident many nations would scramble to supply Italy's needs after the existing commercial contracts have been disrupted by the sanctions program

"When we discover that one nation does not wish to sell us merchandise, we shall then accept offers elsewhere," this source said, adding.

"We previously bought most of our coal from Britain. If Britain wishes to renounce that business, then we will trade with some other nation, possibly Germany or Poland"

As Fascism opened its fourteenth year of rule in Italy, there was confidence the armies of Il Duce would build a new empire in east Africa.

MORE SPENT FOR AID THIS YEAR THAN LAST

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—An official summation showed today that the government, despite its program to end the dole has spent more for relief so far this year than it did during the same period of 1934

This year's relief grants were placed at $1,227,973,573 compared to $1,013,069,738 in the corresponding 10 months of last year

The amount granted for relief since Oct. 1 has been only a fraction of what it was in October a year ago however, and officials are predicting that increased employment from the works program will bring an end to all federal outlays for relief during November

CORN LOAN FIGURE 45 CENTS A BUSHEL

Tentative Decision by AAA Follows Mounting Approval of Its Program.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Authoritative sources said today the AAA had reached a tentative decision on the amount of the 1935 corn loan Indications were that it would be 45 cents a bushel

The decision was made it was reliably reported after mounting returns from Saturday's national corn hog referendum showed a vote of six-to-one in favor of a new production control program next year. The 1934 loan was 55 cents a bushel

The Commodity Credit Corp will grant the loans to farmers who signed the 1935 corn-hog adjustment contracts Corn harvested this year will be placed under bond as security for the advances and cannot be sold until the loans have been repaid

A purpose of the loans is to give producers working capital to tide them over until such a time as they can estimate the amount of corn they will need to feed their hogs

Returns from the corn hog referendum continued to pour in today Unofficial tallies gave for a new program 674,711, against, 106,527

Garner Keeps His Shoes on While Visiting Hirohito

By The Associated Press

TOKIO, Oct. 29—Vice President John Nance Garner of the United States appeared in audience before Emperor Hirohito of Japan today with his shoes on.

That constituted an answer to recent speculation in America over whether he would have to pay his respects to the sovereign in stocking feet.

For two generations no foreign visitor has been asked to remove his shoes when he is ushered across the highly polished wood floors of the palace into the presence of the emperor.

The vice president was clad formally in a cutaway with striped trousers and high-laced black shoes which apparently had not been shined recently.

Accompanying him to the palace were Speaker Joseph W Byrns of the American house of representatives and Edwin L. Neville, charge d'affaires of the American embassy

The trio remained for 10 minutes talking with the sovereign through a foreign office interpreter in the famous Phoenix hall, audience chamber of the palace The subject of their conversation was not disclosed.

A few hours later a strenuous round of official and unofficial formalities over, the Garner party set sail on the liner President Grant, for Kobe, en route to Manila for inauguration of the Philippine commonwealth

A camera incident assertedly involving the congressional party of the vice president, in which someone took a picture of a fortified zone, led to the questioning of a chauffeur of a sightseeing automobile assigned to the group last night.—

The chauffeur was released after the questioning and the incident was declared closed

DURBIN ELECTION CASE DISMISSED

court by J Dudley Sears, former prosecuting attorney of Crawford county, who was named a special prosecutor by Judge C. U Ahl of Bucyrus to handle the Durbin case after William Schwenck, formerly Durbin's attorney, had been elected Crawford county prosecuting attorney to succeed Sears. Sears contended Judge Thomas abused his discretion in dismissing the indictment against Durbin Fred W Warner of Marion and W. J Schwenck of Bucyrus, attorneys for Durbin, contended that the judge had not abused his discretion maintaining that justice had been done and there was no use to proceed further They contended Judge Thomas nolled the indictment because of lack of sufficient evidence to warrant prosecution and argued the man who actually circulated the unsigned election literature never had been arrested

In its decision today the appellate court held in a five-page opinion that Judge Thomas was within his rights when he sustained a motion to dismiss the indictment against Durbin

Proceedings Dismissed

The court today dismissed the error proceedings Sears filed in the appellate court and ordered the case back to the Crawford county common pleas court to execute its dismissal of the indictment The three-judge appellate court was unanimous in its decision

Three years ago Durbin was tried in the Crawford county common pleas court and was convicted of the charge of circulating unsigned campaign literature. Durbin asked for a new trial of the case, and this was granted by Judge Thomas. The state, represented by J. Dudley Sears who then was prosecuting attorney, carried the case to the Third district court of appeals and later to the Ohio supreme court asking that Judge Thomas' order granting a new trial be reversed Both courts upheld Judge Thomas

Before the case could come up for retrial, William Schwenck, formerly Durbin's attorney, became prosecuting attorney, succeeding Sears. Schwenck, as prosecutor, filed motions in common pleas court at Bucyrus asking that the indictment be dismissed Judge Thomas sustained the motion and dismissed it. At the same time, he dismissed another indictment charging Durbin and C Mulcahy of Lima with attempted bribery and blackmail. This case had been pending in the common pleas court and was contingent on the outcome of the other case.

DENIES GUILT IN BURGLARIES

George B. Beachum Bound Over to Grand Jury Following Preliminary Hearing.

Pleading not guilty to a charge of breaking and entering an inhabited dwelling in the night season in connection with the burglary Oct. 5 of the J H Maish residence on King avenue. George H. Beachum, 23, of Owens Station, was bound over to the grand jury under $5,000 bond following a preliminary hearing in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Beachum waived examination.

Beachum is one of three Marion county men arrested two weeks ago after an investigation which police said cleared up 25 burglaries, 22 of which were in Marion. The other two men are Floyd Sauers 25, of 528 North Main street, who pleaded guilty a few days ago to a breaking and entering charge in connection with the Maish burglary and Arthur Hall, 30 of 547½ [illegible] street, who entered a not guilty plea to a charge of breaking and entering an inhabited dwelling in the night season in connection with the same burglary. Both Sauers and Hall were bound over to the grand jury under $5,000 bond each

The only witness at the preliminary hearing for Beachum yesterday was Sauers who was represented by Attorney George T Geran. Police Prosecutor Z. P. Davis represented the state

According to attorneys Sauers testified that on the night of Oct. 5 he drove Beachum and Hall to the neighborhood of the Maish residence and when they learned the house was dark, he let them out and was to return for them a short time later After the trio met later in the evening they went to Hall's house on Silver street, he said and Beachum and Hall had silver and other loot from the Maish residence in a pillow case. Sauers identified three pieces of loot taken from the home

He told of one occasion when he Hall and Beachum went to Columbus to dispose of some of the loot from burglaries and contacted a pawn shop on Fourth street. He was not definite about dates or locations during his testimony, an attorney said

The list of burglaries to which police of Marion and other central Ohio cities are seeking to connect the trio was mounting. It was learned today as authorities are taking Sauers who police said made a complete confession on "a tour" of other cities including Columbus, Kenton, Bucyrus Galion Upper Sandusky and Mansfield

Sauers has been in the hands of Columbus police four days, Police Chief William E. Marks said, and led them to "20 some places" in that city he said the men have burglarized. He is expected to be taken to the other cities in the investigation being conducted

Floyd A. Noé (Automobile Manager, New York News): "There is no doubt in my mind that the 1936 Dodge is the finest looking and most stunningly styled car that Dodge has ever produced. MINIATURE MODEL ROOMS

Our Display at Our Quaker Lace Exposition Friday and Saturday Nov. 1 and 2

Imagine perfect looking books about one-half inch size, a fireplace about three inches high and everything else on the same scale and perfectly done. And yet, these rooms are anything but miniature. Actually they are a third the height of a normal room.

This display has a very serious motive and that is to illustrate the modern trend in interior decoration. They illustrate problems we all have in our homes. They answer these problems in a very interesting and practical manner.

In conjunction with this display, there will be a half-hour talk each day on interior decoration. This will be given by Miss Cecelia Riley, decorative consultant of Quaker Lace Company, who has brought with her, stereopticon slides showing interiors of New York suburban homes. They are not mansions but just average homes and decorated in a manner which any of us could duplicate. That's what makes this whole exhibition so interesting and helpful.

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN BETTER HOME DECORATION

Make a note to attend Miss Riley's talk Friday or Saturday at 3 P. M. in Our Curtain Dept.

Accidents Take Big Toll, Yet Arouse Little Concern

This is one of a series of interviews with representatives of the state industrial commission to be published by The Star in connection with the third annual safety [illegible] to be held in Marion this week.

[illegible] more than [illegible] population of Marion [illegible] be struck by a [illegible] that would kill, [illegible] every resident [illegible] rescue and relief [illegible] entire nation would [illegible] help the stricken. [illegible] of such a disaster [illegible] last year in the [illegible] accidents and [illegible]

[illegible] was used today [illegible] special representative [illegible] of safety and [illegible] state department of [illegible] to emphasize the importance of accident prevention. Mr. Sain is one of four state speakers who have come here to take part in the city's third annual safety campaign. The campaign started Monday and will continue through Wednesday.

The "industrial accident disaster" in Ohio in 1934, Mr. Sain continued, cost 856 workers in Ohio industries their lives, permanently and totally disabled five others, caused 129 to suffer the loss of an eye, 29 the loss of an arm, 15 the loss of a hand, 23 the loss of a leg, two the loss of a foot, 971 the loss of whole fingers, 632 the loss of parts of fingers and 72 loss of one or more toes.

If such a catastrophe were to occur at one time in a comparatively small area of the state, the heavy toll would have a nationwide reaction and everyone would actively do all he or she could to help, he said.

"It seems inconceivable that anyone connected with industry, either as a manager, foreman or worker, could remain calloused to the heart appeal of such a cumulative total of suffering and sorrow within a single year, yet the fact remains that none of us have been sufficiently impressed to put into our safety efforts the ardor and zeal the circumstances warrant," he said.

The barrier, he pointed out, that stands in the way of our full appreciation of the enormity of the accident evil is our seeming refusal to differentiate between lives lost in a calamity and lives lost over a period of days.

He emphasized that the only way to cut down the enormous toll of deaths and injuries in industrial accidents is an organized effort on the part of all foremen and workmen to make all workers "safety conscious," mindful of the danger that lurks in carelessness and thoughtlessness.

"We must break away from the all too-common practice of reading about industrial accidents, hearing their dangers pointed out to us and then blindly continuing our old habits of carelessness with an 'Oh well, what do we care?' attitude," he said.

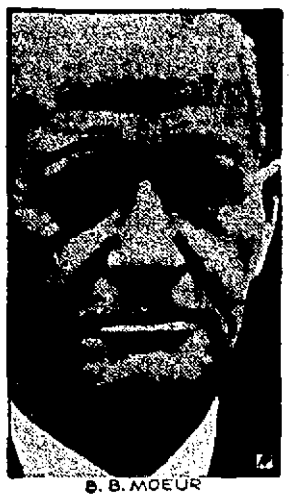
One of a series of Associated Press sketches telling about the men who occupy the governors' chairs in the various states.



B. B. MOEUR

THE GOVERNOR OF ARIZONA

A SOFT-VOICED "country doctor," Benjamin Baker Moeur, is serving his second term as governor of Arizona....He boasts that he neither looks nor acts like a governor....He had never dabbled in politics and was unknown when he announced his candidacy...."Somebody has got to do something about taxes and wasteful governmental expenditures," he told his family. "I'm going to run for governor."...No one took his announcement or candidacy seriously....The babies he had brought into world during more than 35 years of practicing medicine, and their mothers, were a big factor in his election.... He boasts that he never sent a bill "to a widow or a preacher." He marked "paid" the bills of all his creditors who enlisted in the World war....Although 84 years old, he occasionally indulges in fisticuffs, but has promised Mrs. Moeur he will do no more fighting so long as he is governor.... He has accumulated considerable wealth, but still lives in the same house—remodeled—into which he moved when he came to the little valley town of Temple 59 years ago..."I'm a damned good Democrat," Governor Moeur insists, and a stauch supporter of the New Deal.

Mr. McKisson, a Civil war veteran, served with Co. D, 165th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. Mr. Virden, at one time an insurance and real estate agent in Marion and for many years interested in caring for the flowers at Garfield park, is a former superintendent of the Epworth Sunday school.

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth lost parents' fortune and fiance in one grand catastrophe when Lake and Lorinda Farnsworth died without having formally adopted her. She is driven from home by her "relatives" and takes shelter with Tecla Sorki, her old nurse, and others of the Finnish settlement of Union Town. Now she and [illegible] Tecla's sister-in-law, [illegible] Lilsa, are about to rent a small house from Tecla and put it into shape for a home. They are exploring the empty place, now dilapidated and dirty.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

News From Portland

"AND we could have a fireplace!" Anne's interest was [illegible] walked into the [illegible] the view, I can see [illegible] and every ship that comes [illegible] the river from here."

[illegible] came the [illegible]

[illegible] slipped easily through the [illegible] on the front veranda [illegible] up the short flight [illegible] street, thence to a [illegible] fire emerald green [illegible] of the spring sun. [illegible] tips into the deep [illegible] of the sky.

[illegible] here. She could [illegible] house, wear herself out physically and perhaps [illegible] for her spirit in [illegible] which must follow. [illegible] had always thought she'd like to garden, she'd even tried a [illegible] But the gardener at her [illegible] had objected to her "messing" among his conventional [illegible] and she had given up.

"[illegible] take soap and water, lye and disinfectant," Lilsa was saying from behind her. "Then we can start thinking of paint and lumber and wall paper. And then there'll be furniture to buy and...Nikki!" Her voice arose to a screech.

Anne turned quickly. Lilsa was half way out of the window, her feet on the front veranda, her head with its top knot pitched forward over one eye, staring out of a broken window pane. Anne looked at the feet, high button [illegible] in black cotton stockings, then at the face. "Not at [illegible]" she cried as Anne [illegible] to keep from shrieking with laughter. "There in front of you."

Anne wheeled to the side and found herself face to face with John Neuman.

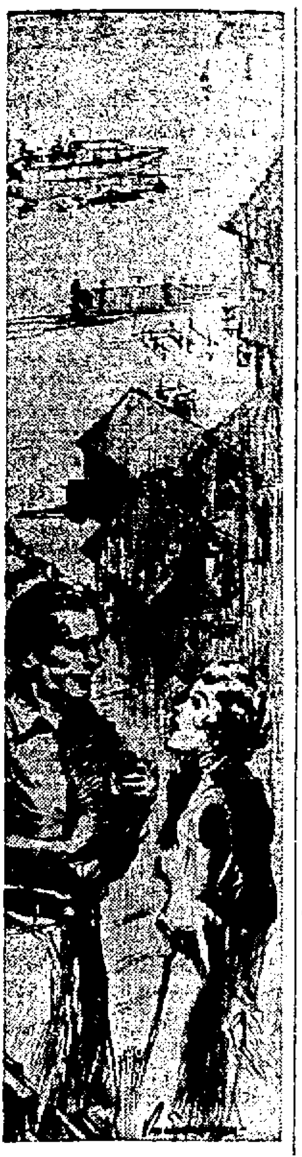
"How do you do, I—ah—"

Anne laughed at the expression on Neuman's face, as she turned to [illegible]. She knew he was seeing a girl in a faded house frock, a tangle of curls, whipped about by a frisky wind, and that he had expected to see a smartly gowned young woman with long smooth braids.



"Yes," Anne agreed, "I'm going to stay"

"The young lady's name is Kikki Nielsen," said Lilsa, sharply.

Anne saw the blue eyes twinkle. "Of course," he apologized, "nice to meet you, Miss Nielsen, you resemble a girl I once met. Perhaps you'd be willing to listen to a message I have for that girl."

"I...I'd be delighted," answered Anne, but the laughter had disappeared from her voice.

"My friend drove your car on to Portland, after I had telephoned Judge Kellogg. He arrived just as the draymen were leaving your things at the Judges house, so as soon as they had left, Kellogg hired a truck and had Clem take them on back with him. I brought them along with me."

"You mean they are here, now?" asked Anne in surprise.

"Judge Kellogg seemed to think you'd have less trouble taking them now than later. No one knows yet that you are not in Portland."

"I convinced him over the telephone that you'd be staying on here for a few months," Neuman went on to explain. "You will be, won't you?"

"She will be," stated Lilsa, positively. "We're going to take this shanty and make a home of it."

Anne looked at the ramshackle house, looked out on the water, out to the curving arm of Cape Disappointment. Did she really want to settle here?

She looked at John Neuman; tall, sturdy, dependable, he too stood looking out on the water. She studied the sun-bronzed, lean face, the immobility of his expression, and then he turned towards her and she caught the full force of his personality in the direct gaze of his sailor-blue eyes.

"Yes," she agreed, disturbed at the feeling of excitement which awakened her from the lethargy of the past few days, "yes," she repeated, "I am going to stay."

Having made her decision, Anne joined Lilsa in telling John of their plans for the house. He listened intently, then suggested they have an old country house-raising.

"Closed season is due in next week, and most of us will have time on our hands. We'll all pitch in, tear out and build in, and by the time the season's over you'll be settled in your home."

Anne also discussed buying a gill-netter for the Sorki boys. Again John listened, then after a few moments of thought he spoke.

"That would rob you of too much of your money. You're so accustomed to having all you need, you may not appreciate its value. Remember, there may be no more coming, except for your monthly allowance, and then they may be able to stop that at the final settling of the will.

"However," he paused and looked out on the water to where the fleet was coming in from the morning drift, "you might risk the five hundred on it. You'd have better luck with the boys, too. You can tell them you'd like to invest it in something, so that should you lose everything else, you'd still have the right to a share of their catch."

"I'd like that," and now Anne's eyes were shining, "and sometimes I could go out with them, couldn't I?"

"I'm sure you could, they might even hire you as boat puller."

"Whatever that is," [illegible] Anne.

"You'll learn," observed Lilsa, "and now let's get down to the house and find the keys. I'd like to start working on the place right away."

"We'll wait here," said Neuman, and Lilsa, after giving him a straight, hard look, stalked away.

"I've a letter here to you, from Judge Kellogg," John said as soon as he heard a bang of a door, indicating Lilsa's arrival at the other house, "and if you'll excuse me, I'll try that window Lilsa stuck in, and if I get through, take a look at the house."

Anne took the letter he handed her, and hurried down the hill to her wind-sheltered nook.

Anne realizes, tomorrow, the meaning of the word "friend."

Junior Opposes Mother's Plan for Punishing Rod

"OH! NO! Mums! No!"

The words burst from Junior in impassioned protest as I told Roderick that his punishment for risking his own life and Junior's in a forbidden attempt to drive a car would be to look on while I taught Junior to drive.

"Hush!" I said mechanically. "You'll waken Faith," and he dropped his voice to almost a whisper, but repeated his protest just as impassionedly as before.

In contrast, Roderick's demeanor appeared almost apathetic, but I knew that the boy, anticipating something dire, had schooled himself to unchildish stoicism.

"Aw! Jun!" he adjured his cousin, as Junior, with no variation, kept on his protesting utterances. "Cut it out! What's the use? You can't change anything by beefing. And if I kin take it, you kin."

"No, I can't," Junior exclaimed in a new emotional outburst, although, miraculously, he kept his voice low.

Brands It Unfair

"Mums!" he appealed to me with a defiant note which I knew he never would have used in a plea for himself. "It isn't fair!

"I don't mean not letting Red learn to drive while he's up here. That's all right, but it isn't all right to teach me while Red looks on. That's awful! We've planned ever since we could remember how we'd learn to drive together, and see which could get it first. This will spoil all the rest, and besides how will I feel, driving around while Red can't touch a wheel?

"It isn't fair. I tell you. I never said 'I won't' to you, Mums, but" his voice trailed off uncertainly [illegible] of the first tenets in the code which Dicky and I had held before him from babyhood: the credo that defiance of authority is an unpardonable thing.

"And you're not going to say it now, I know," I said, not sternly, but with conviction in my voice. "Now, I'm perfectly willing to think this over, but you know very well there will be no punishment in just postponing teaching you both to drive, especially as you did not know I meant to teach you while we were up here. And I think you will both agree with me that Roderick must have some punishment."

Let's Them Decide

"Sure thing," he agreed instantly. "We both know that. But this is awful!"

"How about it, Roderick?" I turned to Dicky's young nephew, who looked at me dully. "Would you rather have the 'Coventry' kept up for a while?"

"Oh! No," he burst out, his eyes suddenly terrified.

"It's not going to be," I assured him quickly. "Now, I'm not going to start these driving lessons until I come up again—I haven't time this trip, for I'm going back home in a day or two—I will promise you this:

"If you can plan together some punishment for Roderick which will make him remember what happened yesterday morning all his life, and which can be carried out up here, I am willing to substitute it for this one I have planned. But remember, it also means no learning to drive for either of you for quite a long time."

Laud Her Decision

"Oh! Mums! you brick!" Junior ejaculated, while Roderick brought out no less fervently, his characteristic, "Oh! Gee! Auntie Madge!"

I tried to deflate the emotionalism as quickly as possible.

"Better not think anything more about punishment tonight," I said. "You don't want to spoil your fishing. Run along now and get your bait-boxes, creels and poles ready as soon as you can. Get your bait-boxes first, for as soon as the rest of them come back, I'll take you down to the Gibbs' home and find out where we can get bait."

"Okay!" they chorused, and went out of the door, leaving me to pace up and down the veranda while I went over and over the new problem which Junior's agitation and Roderick's despairing apathy had brought to me. So absorbed was I that I did not even hear the sound of the car coming back, did not know that the latest applicants for fishing licenses had returned, until the appearance at the outside veranda of Katherine Mary and Noel brought that piece of news home to me.

"The world, Auntie Madge," Mary intoned, brandishing her fishing license aloft, "is now safe for the farmhouse fishers. How unsafe it is for the fish of Little Squam lake is yet to be determined. Oh! my-more-or-less-sainted aunt! I've wakened the baby!"

For from the nursery came Faith's militant "hunger cry."

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Lunch.

WHILE DRIVING through the country a few weeks ago, I passed the old red-brick school house that my parents attended. Along the road came many children of varying ages, all carrying lunch boxes.

My curiosity was aroused and I wondered just how many of these boxes contained real, substantial food, so vital to the growing child. The kind of lunch the child carries to school is of paramount importance, particularly if hot dishes are not served at the noon hour.

Many important academic problems arise in connection with school life. The problem of providing the proper lunch for the school child is just exactly as important. Progress in school is dependent upon the physical health of the child. If this is true, why not give thought to the kind of a lunch that will enable the child to keep fit and mentally alert?

Some of the schools today provide one or two hot dishes to supplement the box lunch the child brings from home. If facilities for serving a hot luncheon are not available, it is well to include a hot beverage, such as soup, or chocolate, in the child's box lunch. This is easily prepared and kept hot in a thermos bottle.

Bear in mind that when the lunch box is too hastily packed the contents may not have an attractive appearance. Often the underlying cause of faulty appetite, poor eating habits and subsequent loss of weight can be attributed to careless choice and preparation of materials.

The lunch box should be kept clean and should be easy to carry. Make sure the utensils are clean and adequate. Use plenty of wax paper to preserve the freshness of the food. Use colorful napkins and trim the box so that the child will be pleased with his luncheon. This acts as a stimulant to the appetite and an aid to digestion as well.

What type of food to choose depends upon the age of the child. A six-year-old youngster may have a sandwich made of chicken, minced ham, fish, egg, bacon or peanut butter. A raw fruit or vegetable should be included. You may choose from oranges, bananas, apples, grapes, plums, peaches, pears, tomatoes and celery.

A tempting dessert, such as candy, raisins or cookies, in reasonable quantity, may be placed in the box as well as the thermos bottle containing milk or hot cocoa.

Saving Something.

Ethiopian strategists apparently have taken the advice of the preponderant majority of military experts, including millions who never saw a battle, in giving way before the superior power of Italy's invading armies. The theory is simple and obvious, and perhaps it's even good. By retreating, the Ethiopians embarrass the Italians more than they could by fighting. The invasion is a problem in organizing supply lines and finding water rather than a problem of combat. The superiority of the Italian army in equipment and training is unquestioned.

There has been no important engagement as yet between important armies of the combatants. The Ethiopians have been resisting moderately and falling back. The Italians have been following up their advantages slowly, waiting for engineers to build roads. The war has been going on three weeks, but despite the steady Ethiopian retreat Italy's invasion still is estimated in terms of a few miles. Yet, it is agreed apparently, according to dispatches from correspondents, that Italy is in grave danger. Ethiopia, it is reported, is preparing to join the issue. It is getting ready to take a stand and fight.

That is the outlook as the war approaches the end of its first month's duration. It is recalled in connection with the time element that many observers believed Premier Mussolini would be ready to abandon the war by Christmas. The impending pitched battle, of course, will not be the last, because the armies of both countries are divided. Perhaps by Christmas there will have been three or four decisive battles. The nature of the war is going to change, apparently, from a problem in retreat and advance to a problem in extermination. The Italians, outnumbered, are better equipped from a material standpoint. But the Ethiopians, natural fighters and accustomed to the terrain, still are a good bet to make a creditable showing in defense of their country.

Superhuman Courage.

A factual analysis of the inflation danger in swollen balances of the country's banks is concluded with the following gloomy statement:

"Whatever the dangers for the future, great courage would be required to order an increase in required reserves at a time when the country was beginning to enjoy a new period of prosperity based on credit inflation. Superhuman courage would be needed to take such deflationary action in election year."

Here is a distinct and widely apprehended danger to the continued stability of the United States. Nothing is being done to prevent it from materializing in the form of a runaway inflation. The same men who criticized the Hoover administration for not preventing the inflation of 1929 are threatened by the same peril, yet seem helpless.

They seem even worse than helpless, because they are giving at least tacit support to a measure that almost certainly would prove to be the last straw on the bent back of the nation's financial structure. That measure is the grossly inflationary proposal to pay the veterans' bonus. It means that if the proposal is adopted the treasury will have to find $2,500,000,000 with which to pay the bonus. It will turn to the banks, which already have been loaded heavily with new deal financing. It will add another enormous puff to a credit inflation which already is capable of supporting a credit expansion of more than $60,000,000,000, something like $20,000,000,000 more than was possible in the boom of 1929.

When the treasury sells securities to banks, it doesn't get cash, but credit. The amount of the credit is entered as a deposit, and is a basis for a loan. Furthermore, as the government draws on its credit, the amounts withdrawn appear shortly thereafter as private deposits to the credit of individuals and corporations. Loans may be made on these deposits. The loans when made, like loans to the government, do not entail a transfer of cash, but a credit entry, on which further loans are possible. That, in brief, is the process of credit inflation, which some foolhardy Americans now propose to make more suicidal than ever by adding $2,500,000,000 to its momentum. Truly, superhuman courage is needed to stem the tide of inflation in an election year.

The Line of Approach.

"Yes, we are on our way back, not by mere chance, not by a turn of the cycle. We are coming back more soundly than ever before, because we planned it that way."

In those words, spoken last week at Charleston, President Roosevelt removed all doubt of his line of approach to reelection. He will say, "we are on our way back. The new deal has brought results."

Unfortunately, from the President's point of view, there exists a great deal of doubt as to the soundness of his claim. Certain hard facts and disturbing questions disturb complacency.

It cannot be proved that the new deal has aided recovery. It cannot be proved that the condition now being described as recovery is healthy. It cannot be proved that it is going to last.

It cannot be proved that the United States has not lighted a long fuse to a powder keg in its fiscal policy. It cannot be proved that the Roosevelt administration has not dug away the foundations of political stability with some of its legislation. There are many things open to question.

They apparently do not disturb President Roosevelt. He plainly intends to stake his chance of reelection on the possibility that at the end of next year voters will believe the new deal has caused recovery. Success depends on two things: the appearance of recovery and postponement of the inevitably disastrous results of an unsound fiscal policy.

President Roosevelt expects to be reelected. Yet, even in his moments of greatest confidence, he must know at least as plainly as anyone else in the United States that the new deal, which may or may not have helped to dissolve the darkest gloom of the depression, has within it the elements of national disaster, in the form of uncontrolled inflation.

A New Concept.

There's nothing new under the sun, but occasionally things have an appearance of newness, due to some marked difference in their form. There is, for instance, a seemingly new concept of government abroad in the modern world.

It is a concept in which the state has been elevated to an almost mystic plane. Instead of being merely a structure of fallible men and questionable policies held together by the tolerance of the persons it governs, the government of the new concept has become a fountain head of infallibility and inspired doctrine.

In such a state, worship takes the place of that practical patriotism which is the reasonable man's way of showing his support for the organization he helps to support. The state is held in reverence. It is the ultimate end of life's activity. It can do no wrong. It tolerates no questioning.

Obviously, a concept that demands blind obedience to government on a basis of worship rather than reason cannot flourish everywhere. It requires a degree of submission which American and British peoples, for instance, would find distasteful and silly. Yet, if reports from abroad may be trusted, Germans, Russians and Italians, in varying degrees, all are able to submerge their individualities in the vast unity of the state—"the totalitarian state," as the phrase makers call it. In Asia, Japanese submission to the state seems to have approached the same level of religious fervor.

No imagination is required to visualize the possibilities for evil when the state controls everything and when a few men, fallible like those they control, are permitted to control the state. Every speculation on the possibility of war, significantly, entails one or more of the totalitarian states—Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan. Freedom—the right of individuals to express themselves independently of the masses of which they are a part—is being challenged by a concept of government in which freedom cannot survive.

Neighborhood History

NEVADA

The village of Nevada in Wyandot county was named for the state of the same name which was attracting considerable attention in the year 1852. Founders of the town were Jonathan Ayres and George Garrett. The land on which the village is located was purchased from the government by William McKibben of Ashland county and was purchased of him by Ayers and Garrett.

Jonathan Ayres was the son of Dr. Isaac and Eliza Coulter Ayres and was born in Beaver county, Pa., March 12, 1822. Garrett was of mixed Indian and white descent.

William McJunkins had the distinction of being Nevada's pioneer merchant. He erected the first store room in the place in 1853. He also served as postmaster and railroad agent at the same time.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—When Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Haile Selassie, the Ethiopian emperor, was in the metropolis last year, he stopped at the St. Moritz. Arriving around 11 o'clock from Washington, he had an entourage of five—secretary, advisor, companion and two bodyguards. He never smiled.

Shortly after installed in his terrace suite he phoned the management he would like a local policeman to spend the night in a chair outside his sleeping quarters. A quick call to headquarters brought a sturdy, uniformed Irishman to carry out the request.

Ras Desta visited Radio City, the N. B. C. studios, the Empire State building and Washington bridge. He insisted always on walking if the distances were not too great. His advisor at his side and a bodyguard fore and aft. He never passed a beggar without giving an alms.

Broadway lights particularly fascinated him. All the wiles of press agentry were employed to lure him into a night club, but he turned a deaf ear. His tips upon departing were fair, but not extravagant. Employes recalled Ras Desta Demtu as a thoughtful, kindly and gentle man.

The literary world hears that Ernest Booth, discovered while serving a life term in California by H. L. Mencken, is, under a changed law, to receive his freedom in four years, having served eleven. A ban on prison writing since 1928 has also been lifted, provided it does not deal with crime or prisons. During his long travail, Booth, one-time burglar, has devoted his available hours from rockbreaking to a historical research of Byzantine literature, and is an authority. So much so he has completed a novelized version of the rise of Justinian's mistress from a mimic to the exalted position of empress. He has also achieved economic security for a devoted wife by writing for Hollywood.

A rendezvous of backgammon addicts is an intimately congenial boite known as Dimitri's, in a tumbling twist of Greenwich Village. Dimitri, an Egyptian, is an expert, and among his occasional opponents is Mahardi, recognized as one of the foremost authorities on the game. Among other adepts are Baron Wrangel, society scribbler, Courtney Burr, Ralph Owen, Prince Serge Obolensky, and Maurice Hecksher.

Backgammon, like mah-jong, was one of the short-lived fancies of the boom. But unlike mah-jong—are any mah-jongists left?—there are a number of enthusiasts who will quit bridge, badminton or ping-pong for backgammon. Someone tells me the revival began on the Riviera the summer of 1927. Alexander Woollcott, also a croquet addict, is said to have given it impetus. Still another says the furore was really started by Elsa Maxwell.

The passing of DeWolf Hopper removed one of the popular members of the Lambs. When in New York most his leisure was spent there and during his last years lunched almost daily at the Gene Buck table. "Hoppy" had the trouper's contempt for late hours. He loved night, a cheery corner of a grill, and good fellowship, although temperate. At 77, when most men are thinking of the pipe and comfortable chair, he was busy as a bee. When the stage was shot from under him, he turned to the radio with all the enthusiasm of a school boy. And clicked.

I had a brief note from Hopper, written in a Kansas City hotel about 10 days before his exit. It was in a firm, distinct hand, without the usual chirographic tremolo that so often comes with years. He had, on a brief motor ride, passed through the Missouri town where I was born, lunched at a hotel my father built and thought I might like news of familiar scenes. Such touches of graciousness made him as popular away from the footlights as before them.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Oct. 29, 1925.

Col. William Mitchell, head of the aviation division of the war department, lost the second round of his battle against army tradition and custom when a jury of nine generals trying him for conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline overruled his plea that to try him for criticizing his superiors took away from him his constitutional rights of free speech.

George A. Fritch, 72, died at his home on Olney avenue.

Mrs. Mary Jennings entertained with a six o'clock dinner at her home on West Center street in honor of Mrs. Jessie Bee of Rockland, W. C. T. U. organizer, and Mrs. Howard Tonguett of Olivet, Ill., a former Marion resident.

Misses Margaret Williams and Mary Kathrine Artopoeus entertained with a Hallowe'en party at the Williams home on North Grand avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Oct. 29, 1915.

A great battle was developing between the allied forces and their Austro-German and Bulgarian adversaries for possession of Nish, for many years capital of Serbia. The Bulgarian advance guard had reached a point only 8 miles from Nish and the civilian population was leaving.

King George of England was thrown from a horse and seriously injured while he was reviewing troops at London.

The British war office reported that British casualties up to Oct. 9 in all theaters of war had reached 493,294 officers and men. Of this total 365,046 killed, wounded and missing were listed from the western theater in France and Belgium.

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "In the Heart of the Blue Ridge" with Clara Kimball Young in the leading role. At the Alhambra, now the Ohio, John and Jane Adair and their stock company were presenting "Thelma."

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Slusser on Superior street was ransacked by burglars while the owners were in Lima where they had been called by the critical illness of Mrs. Slusser's father.

The congregation of Trinity Baptist church held a reception at the church for the pastor, Dr. T. H. McAfee, and family.

Behind The News In
Washington and Wall Street

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—The day before the farmers voted to continue the corn-hog program for another year, President Roosevelt was able to announce that it would be permanent. He announced that the AAA program would be simplified and perfected for an indefinite period.

No direct mention was made of the corn-hog program, of course. The President himself said his announcement had no connection whatever with the vote to be held 24 hours later. His assurance to the farmers had been in the process of formation for a long time and it just happened to be given out by him the night before the farmers went to the polls. It was just fate, that's all, a hand made happy fate.

Foresight

The AAA administrator, Mr. Davis, whose lack of political acumen is advertised far and wide, has verified this interpretation. His statement has all but closed the matter as far as the super-suspicious observers here were concerned. They would be willing to read politics into reports from the weather bureau but never into one prepared by Mr. Davis.

The result, therefore, can only be another high tribute to the daring foresight of the AAA boys. They may have had a little inkling as to how the vote would come out. Inasmuch as they campaigned for it, conducted it and counted it. But even so, you will have to hand them something, if it is only a laugh, for preparing and getting the President to issue such a confident pre-election pronouncement on the eve of the balloting.

Rage

This official inside tale about the innocent conspiracies of fate might hold together better, if it were not for one point. There was no need for the AAA crowd to dash over to the White House with a preelection statement for the President's signature if they were going to win by such a big margin.

You might be able to get the real inside story if you could look into the confidential reports received by AAA headquarters from out in the farm fields prior to the voting. You might find there a more credible explanation, in a few suggestions that some of the farmers were raging, not against Mr. Roosevelt or particularly against the corn-hog program, but decidedly against some of the men chosen by the AAA to administer it.

Such reports would explain adequately why the AAA boys would want the President to issue a personal statement indirectly disavowing such things and promising simplification of administraton, as he did.

Report

If the AAA field reports are frank, they will contain something along the line of a confidential survey recently made by a Roosevelt investigator from a Rocky Mountain state. It was his conclusion that if Mr. Roosevelt was slipping any in the farm regions, it was solely because of "the greedy, selfish, arrogant misuse of power by those entrusted with the administration of committees and commissions set up by the national administration at Washington."

Following are excerpts reflecting his studied analysis:

"The farm organization was once under leadership of a real master farmer . . . Today the picture presented is that of a dead local, a dying county and a top-heavy state organization, receiving substance from the cooperative disposal organization of the state. This latter is the only helpful organization the farmers have, and it deducts enough from the income of farm members to keep alive a state agricultural organization.

"There are meetings of farmers, called by the farm organization, at which few farmers are to be found and none is permitted to speak. The few who do attend are crowded into the back seats and listen to the presidents of busted banks, extension workers, college professors from home and abroad, home demonstrators, music masters and piano tuners, who head farm relief agencies.

"The farm agencies have been taken over by men who have never raised anything but their hats."

Conclusions

The political conclusions of this admirer of the President were:

"In the election of 1934 any candidate with a Democratic label who promised to uphold the President was elected automatically. This will not be true in 1936. The voters in the farming section and the small towns will thresh the wheat from the chaff.

"To say that the farmers of the west may be with the President does not mean that they are with the new dealers whose only interest in state and national politics is that it leads them to the political pie counter. Neither is it meant to imply that they can be won over by any such slogan as: 'Save the Constitution.'"

BY JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—New Yorkers in close touch with Europe say the inside feeling between Britain and France is much more bitter than appears on the surface. The British are secretly convinced that Mussolini wouldn't be nearly so stubborn if he hadn't been getting surreptitious moral support from Premier Laval. They virtually accuse Laval of double-crossing them and are bringing all the private pressure they can—which isn't very effective—to squeeze Laval out of his job and have anglophile Edouard Herriot replace him.

Laval and his ministers are well aware of this and naturally resent it. Moreover they don't like the idea of being forced to tailor their policy to fit British requirements. They feel they have been strong-armed to make a British political holiday. If it weren't for the ever-present Hitler menace they would love to tell John Bull to go peddle his fish elsewhere.

Ever since the World war—until recently—England has been working quietly for some sort of Franco-German rapprochement. Keen observers now see such a rapprochement as a distinct possibility. But ironically—if it comes—it will be essentially anti-British and will have been brought about primarily by the rising tide of French antagonism to British.

Careful

Financial sharps note that Laval has a weapon at hand that could hurt the British a lot if John Bull gets too rough with him—an embargo on French gold exports. This move has been discussed before—mainly as a measure of internal economic defense. But if an embargo should be declared in the next few weeks the primary motive will be to make trouble for England.

Such a step would have wide implications. Britain has been able to manage her currency successfully because she could keep it in any desired balance with the gold franc. She could do so no longer if the franc were detached from gold. An embargo would be tantamount to devaluation. The franc would drop in the world markets and sterling would rise—which is the last thing the British would like to see happen.

You might put it that the French government has the power to upset the entire British monetary policy of the last four years. The sterling bloc—which has given Britain an immense world trade advantage—might disintegrate rapidly if the pound were to lose its gold franc compass. So it behooves Stanley Baldwin & Co. to be careful not to ride their neighbor too hard.

Music

Jesse Jones' pet plan to solve the problem of the bankrupt Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad by advancing $7,200,000 to eight other roads to pick up its properties piecemeal and put it out of its misery is due to run into heavy storms. So far everything has gone smoothly enough. The eight roads—after long persuasion—have formed a group called Associated Railways and applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to carry out the Jones program. Now the fun will begin.

Critics point out that Jones' proposal works out to about $6,100 a mile for the Minneapolis & St. Louis main line—as against a replacement cost of at least $35,000 a mile. This deflated figure would set a precedent for the future that has other railroads worried—and the I. C. C. will be earnestly urged to disallow the application because the valuation is unfair. The I. C. C. has no overwhelming affection for Mr. Jones anyway—and may do so.

Then there will be lusty protests from cities where the road's shops would have to close and towns that would be deprived of railroad service—protests it would not be politically wise to ignore. Most important of all—the powerful railway brotherhoods are likely to raise cain. Not only would the Jones plan throw a number of workers out of jobs—those who were retained in the service of other roads would lose their prized seniority rights. Mr. Jones will not be resting on roses—and his troubles will be sweet music to a number of New Yorkers who have come off second best in arguments with him.

Irked

Utility leaders are feeling quite cocky these days. They are supremely confident that the Baltimore court will decide the American States Public Service case in their favor and rule the holding company law unconstitutional.

But impartial observers doubt that all this cheerfulness is justified. They point out that the government wasn't officially represented in the defense—and is therefore hardly likely to accept the test as conclusive. Moreover the supreme court might give weight to the government's contention that the case was framed against it.

New dealers are privately irked about this "collusive" attempt to get the judicial nullification of the law. Their attitude bodes no good—if the law is eventually upheld—for the bright boys of the Edison Institute who thought up the ingenious angle of excluding the government from participation in the suit.

Skeptical

On the basis of the Seabury-Berle figures the price at which New York City is to take over the local transit lines should make I. R. T. stock worth about $30 a share, B. M. T. about $60 and Manhattan about $35. Yet all three are selling well below these quotations.

The Senegambian in the woodpile is the skepticism of insiders as to the true value of the bonds which the city and transit control board will issue in payment for the properties. The subway and L lines will not earn the fixed charges required by the bonds on a nickel fare—and chances for an increase are mighty slim. This means that the city (or rather its taxpayers) will have to make up the difference. But insiders privately doubt that it will work out that way.

This is no slur on the city's credit either. There is an important legal question involved—whether the city has the probable right to pledge its own revenues for the purpose. If the courts should rule that it hasn't, holders of the proposed bonds would be at least mildly out of luck.

Dodge

New York gets reports of a shortage of skilled labor in many lines of industry. The Federation of Labor is preparing to put up a hot argument on this question—charging that large employers are spreading such reports purely as an alibi for setting up apprentice wage scales. The dispute on this point may bring on important strikes later in industries where the apprentice dodge is attempted.

Involved

Wall Street hasn't yet been able to make workable sense out of the involved new regulations promulgated by the securities exchange commission to govern trading in rights and warrants for securities not yet issued. Some of the boys think the only answer is to hire Dr. Einstein as an interpreter.

HARDING DRILLING FOR ASHLAND TILT; TYGERS MEET SHELBY

League Contests Go Into Final Quarter of Season With Mansfield Leading.

Competition in the North Central Ohio football league gained a fever pitch today as the teams prepared to enter the final quarter of the season. Many hard battles loom as the teams spar for positions before going into last-minute encounters.

Harding High, defeated last week at Galion, is now in a tie with Galion for third place. The Presidents will be drilling hard this week for their battle with Ashland Saturday. It was the Ashland squad that last week toppled Shelby out of a first place tie with Mansfield. Ashland pulled a surprise victory over the Shelby gridders and they will prove strong opposition for the Cramermen.

Galion remains idle as far as the league is concerned but is scheduled to play at home with Bucyrus this Saturday. Mt. Vernon, newcomer to the league, has no scheduled game this week.

Shelby Meets Mansfield

Shelby, thought to be the league's lone hope to stop the Mansfield High Tygers, will get an opportunity to prove its strength this week. The teams are scheduled to play at Mansfield Saturday.

Should Shelby's outside chance of winning materialize, the entire first division would undergo a complete change. It would mean that the Tygers percentage would drop to .666 and Shelby's would increase to .750. The position of the Ashland team would depend on the outcome of its game with Marion. Winning it Ashland players would be tied with Shelby for first place with .750, and by losing it they would drop to a .500 percentage. Shelby's defeat of the Tygers would give Marion an excellent chance to land permanently in the first division. Winning from Ashland Saturday would give the Presidents a .500 percentage, while in losing they would drop to .250.

Presidents Drill

Coach Carl Cramer has set up a stiff practice schedule for his proteges during this week. They worked out last night at Central high field until darkness. Coach Cramer, although disappointed in losing the game last week, was hopeful when he saw his team stand up under pressure. The Presidents, after trailing 14-0 in the second quarter of their game with Galion, staged a comeback to score a touchdown in the closing minutes of the first half. Galion scored a touchdown in the third period, but the Presidents kept on with only four minutes to play in the final quarter. During the last four minutes they began another touchdown drive which netted them substantial gains, but the end of the game halted their drive.

During Saturday's game the line was performing almost to perfection. Fumbles at crucial moments, however, kept the Presidents in hot water most of the time. The Marion team gained much ground through the opposing line and proof of its power lies in the fact that Harding players were given credit for 11 first downs to seven for Galion.

Coach Cramer, realizing the strength of the Ashland squad, is preparing to send his men against them in the best condition possible. No serious injuries were sustained during the Galion game and all players seemed to be in good shape at their practice last night.

Dave Huntsman, injured in practice last week, will be ready to play ball against Ashland. Dave saw a few minutes action against Galion but was unable to produce his regular brand of play due to the injury.

George Nichols of Sandusky, former light-heavyweight boxing champion of the world, is preparing to make a comeback. Nichols will engage in several warm-up bouts prior to meeting some of the country's ranking fighters.

PUBLIC WELCOME AT SOFTBALL BANQUET

Awards To Be Made Following Dinner Thursday Night at Y. M. C. A.

Plans for the annual softball banquet to be held Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A. were nearly complete today.

The banquet and program, however, are open to the public, and anyone wishing to attend may make reservations with Elmer Shaw at the Y. M. C. A.

Municipal Judge W. H. Martin, president of the Marion softball league, will serve as toastmaster. League pennants will be awarded the four winning teams, Lee Street, Forest Lawn, Pleasant Trinity Lutheran and the Silk Mill. A silver trophy will be presented to the Silk Mill team, champions of the 1935 season.

It is anticipated that more than 60 persons will be present. Those who wish to make reservations should do so tonight.

Feverish Fans Await Clash of State and Irish

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29—When the fighting Irish arrive on the banks of the Olentangy Saturday to meet the Scarlet Scourge of Ohio State, they'll find themselves in an utterly mad city.

The town's sanity is nearing the breaking point already and the Ohio State-Notre Dame game is still four and a half days off.

Here are some authentic observations:

The weather bureau, taking a cue from Lloyds of London, will quote odds of three to one against rain, but it will back its prediction with no government money.

Buckeye Coach Francis A. Schmidt is locking up the stadium like a miser's treasure box as he drills his crew.

On the street corners, you're either "with us or against us." You can't say, "I'm really not interested in football."

And you're numbered among the quick or the dead according to your ability to flee from the scene of any disparaging comment on the Buckeyes.

Walter Pitkin, the psychologist famed for his "life begins at 40" theory, was in a debate here the other night. They say that an Ohio State rooter asked him if he was referring to the 40 yard line.

Then there's the unverified report—strictly unverified—that police—but never mind. You'd never believe it.

ARLINGTON WINS FROM FOREST, 2-1

Special to The Star

FOREST, Oct. 29—The Arlington-Forest baseball feud of 1935 was definitely settled at Moyer field Sunday afternoon. In the third and deciding game of the series, Arlington emerged victorious, 2 to 1. Arlington won the first game of the series 7 to 5, but lost the second 5 to 0.

Johnny Yates and Floyd West hooked up in the mound duel, each allowing six hits. Yates fanned 10 and West eight.

The largest paid gate of the series, 933, was recorded.

Revolver Teams Ready To Start New Season

Next week will mark the beginning of the 1935-36 target season of the Marion Revolver association. Practice matches which have been conducted for the past two weeks will be continued through this week. After that time the six five-men teams will be permanently set up for the winter season.

Matches on the range in the basement of the Eagles building will continue on a regular schedule. Target competition will be held every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with teams changing opponents each week.

As the season progresses matches will be scheduled with teams from other cities. Teams to be booked for home and return matches will probably include Columbus and Lima.

Officials of the revolver association in charge of the arrangements are: Walter Bailey, A. Van-Kleeck, and G. L. Baker, directors; R. S. Slagle, secretary and Louie Roebuck, treasurer.

CRUCIAL GAMES UP IN BUCKEYE LEAGUE

Wesleyan To Meet Cincinnati, Miami To Clash With Ohio University.

By The Associated Press

Four teams in the Buckeye conference embarked on a week of strenuous practicing today as the title race neared the crucial stage.

Ohio Wesleyan and Miami face the sternest tests. The Bishops have the difficult task of trying to stop Cincinnati, the team that whipped Indiana. Miami goes to the mat with its old rival, Ohio university, which also has a victory over a Big Ten outfit, Illinois, to its credit.

At Marietta, Coach Duke Hayes had every right to feel blue over his team's chances against Denison, in an Ohio conference fray. Eight Marietta men failed to appear for practice yesterday due to injuries. Hayes said four may be through for the season.

The Ohio Northern Polar Bears went through the longest scrimmage of the year yesterday. Northern plays Detroit Tech this week.

Kent State's squad had a day off as a reward for beating Bowling Green.

Coach Russ Cohen of Cincinnati said Bill Schwarburg, quarterback, may be out for the rest of the season as a result of leg injuries received last week. Linus Haby, halfback, is also on the injured list.

Buck Weaver Defeated in Wrestle Bout With Allen

Former Tourney Winner Loses Two of Three Falls; Yaqui Joe Floors Tiger Moore.

Buck Weaver, winner of the Ohio middleweight championship tournament here last November, lost his wrestling bout at the Shovel gym last night to Roy Allen of Alabama. Yaqui Joe, of Sonora, Mexico, returning to the local ring after the absence of five years, defeated Tiger Moore of Benton, Ind., in the second feature bout. In the twenty-minute preliminary, Frankie Clemons of New York City and Tommy O'Toole of Phoenix, Ariz., wrestled to a draw.

Weaver fell into trouble early in the first fall when he allowed Allen to gain an arm stretch on him. He did break loose, however, only to have Allen repeat the same hold. Buck slipped out the second time and used a rolling key lock to gain the first fall in 14 minutes.

The second fall went to Allen after 10 minutes of fast and clever wrestling. Allen countered an arm scissors and pinned Buck to gain the fall. Weaver began the deciding fall by tying Allen up with a self-strangler which weakened the Alabama boy considerably. Allen gained the deciding fall when he countered a flying mare with chin kick and used a body press to pin Buck's shoulders.

Yaqui Joe and Tiger Moore gave the crowd an exhibition of clean and fast wrestling. The Tiger used 20 minutes to tame Joe in the first fall. After Yaqui broke loose from a leg scissors the Tiger bounced off the ropes and landed three hard shoulder punches to floor his opponent. He used a body press to complete the first fall.

Yaqui turned on the heat during the two following falls and gained them both, using clever ring strategy to get the Tiger in a bad spot. After 15 minutes had passed in the second fall the Tiger bounced into the ropes and, as he came away, Joe caught him with a flying body scissors to get the fall.

The third fall lasted only six minutes as Yaqui sidestepped a flying tackle and pounced on the Tiger to pin him with a body press.

Fans cheered as it was announced that a return match bringing together the Black Panther and Gil LaCrosse has been booked for the wrestling card next week. It was last week that these two wrestlers battled to a draw after each had gained one legitimate fall.
